

Workshop Title: Innovative Pedagogies for Higher Education. What Really Works? (And What Not...)

Professor Lucian Ciolan, PhD, University of Bucharest, Romania

Objectives: by the end of the workshop, participants will:

- Understand the strengths and limitations of different innovative pedagogies;
- Gain insights into the practical implementation of structural and process-oriented innovations;
- Identify key success factors and challenges in designing effective pedagogical innovations.

Workshop Description

Higher education institutions worldwide are under increasing pressure to innovate their pedagogical approaches. The rapid transformation of the knowledge production, digitalization, and evolving student expectations demand a fresh look at both structural and process-oriented pedagogical innovations. However, not all innovations yield the intended impact—some succeed in enhancing learning, while others fail to live up to expectations. This interactive workshop aims to critically examine what truly works in innovative pedagogies for higher education and what does not, drawing on both research evidence and participants' experiences.
